The Academy is where psychodynamic psychiatrists and physician psychoanalysts: discover a forum for exchange of ideas; find a voice within the American Psychiatric Association (APA) to advocate for psychodynamic understanding in the evaluation and treatment of patients; take a leadership role in promoting the importance of psychodynamic training in residency and medical education.

The American Academy of Psychodynamic Psychiatry and Psychoanalysis (AAPDPP) is an affiliate organization of the World Psychiatric Association (WPA) and the American Psychiatric Association (APA).

Message from the Program Co-Chairs

In hindsight, every period we've lived through exhibits societal change. But some periods feel revolutionary even while we live through them. The '60s, for example, quickly became synonymous with political and social upheaval, exploding with new attitudes towards sex (the "pill" was approved in June 1960), free love and free speech, race issues and diversity. Though at first it may be hard to sense the revolution, then you do – and get with it.

The subject of our Academy meeting for 2023, "Sex, Drugs, and Psychodynamics," reflects our own changing times, and an intention to educate practitioners on what's different about the field, our patients, and the nature of our work. The point is to advance best practices.

So, why focus on these topics?

After all, sex has always been complicated. When you multiply the urgency of sex by the passions of love, the complexity increases exponentially. Nothing new about that! The same is true when the two face off in opposite corners -- you can have sex with someone you don't love, or love someone towards whom you feel no passion. Such problems with intimacy are routine stuff in our work. We take a sexual history, we explore sexuality and sexual fantasies, apply psychotherapeutic and psychopharmacology (a little, blue pill!), and often patients get better.

But what is new about sex – or, rather, its public manifestation – is the surging prominence of queerness. With the emergence of LGBTQ identity as a movement, “complicated” is now perplexing, even problematic. Do we delay the onset of puberty in someone confused about “his,” “her,” or “their” identity? What adolescent isn't confused? Moreover, as the rising wave of activism demonstrates, adults can be equally upended by “queerness.” The concerns are serious, and medical institutions have programs and centers to help patients address issues with gender dysphoria and possible transition.

Now consider the changing landscape associated with drugs. Street drugs used to be recreational, in contrast to medications which were therapeutic. But now ketamine, known on the street as “Special K,” is an established treatment for refractory Major Depression (efficacy studies better than ECT), and it comes in a handy nasal spray (Spravato). Psilocybin (‘shrooms) and LSD are being studied in micro-doses for PTSD and other disorders. Trippy retreats with ayahuasca, a vine with hallucinogenic properties when ingested, are reported in medical journals (and The New Yorker) to transform the lives of participants. NMDA (yes, “ecstasy”) is used in conjunction with psychotherapy to treat Anxiety Disorders, PTSD, and other psychiatric conditions. Several major medical institutions now have centers or programs in psychedelic medicine.

Thus, psychotherapy and psychodynamic psychiatry are not as their founding American fathers—Brill, Jones, and Rado—had envisioned. Research linking the psychodynamic approach with cognitive neuroscience was predicted by Eric Kandel, MD, a Nobel laureate in Medicine, in the American Journal of Psychiatry (1999). So, forget the Procrustean couch. Instead, take a walk with us to explore new possibilities, as Freud did through that park in Vienna with Mahler, or as Socrates did with his students in establishing the peripatetic tradition. For example, think about how well-established models of the mind have become unsettled by neuroscience. Did you know that phobias and anxiety conditions can be treated by exposing a patient to stimuli of which they are not even consciously aware? So much for making the unconscious conscious as the basis for psychoanalytic treatment.

All of which is to say that yes, “the times they are a-changin.”

Conference Learning Objectives: This meeting has been designed to meet the following professional practice gaps and the needs derived from those gaps:

Gap #1:

Improving treatment of patients by:

- A. Attaining sufficient knowledge of psychodynamic principles and the ability to apply this knowledge.
- B. Enhancing the ability to integrate dynamic principles, psychopharmacology, and neuroscience in clinical practice.

Needs derived from the gaps above:

- A. To learn about development of therapeutic alliances; transference and countertransference; the handling of challenging situations; and practical applications of psychoanalytic theories.
- B. To learn about complex pathologies, neuroscientific advances, pharmacological treatments, and medical conditions and their implications/ramifications for psychodynamic psychotherapy.

Gap #2:

Enhancing training of residents and early career psychiatrists.

Needs derived from this gap:

- A. To learn new ways of engaging residents and training them in the complex theories and techniques of psychodynamic psychotherapy.
- B. To foster learning of complex theories and techniques of psychodynamic psychotherapy by early career psychiatrists.

All presentations must address at least one of the specified needs.

The Academy expects the results of its CME program to be an improvement in competence or performance. Definitions: “Competence” refers to knowing how to do something; and “Performance” is what a psychiatrist would do in practice if given the opportunity.

Target Audience: Those interested in the recent developments and clinical application of psychodynamic approaches: a) psychoanalysts, psychiatrists, child and adolescent psychiatrists, other physicians, residents and fellows; b) psychologists, interns and students of psychology; c) social workers, students of social work; d) allied professionals and students.

The American Academy of Psychoanalysis and Dynamic Psychiatry is accredited by the Accreditation Council for Continuing Medical Education (ACCME) to provide continuing medical education for physicians.

The American Academy of Psychoanalysis and Dynamic Psychiatry designates this live activity for a maximum of 19.5 AMA PRA Category 1 Credits™. Physicians should claim only the credit commensurate with the extent of their participation in the activity.

The American Academy of Psychoanalysis and Dynamic Psychiatry acknowledges the generous support of the Alexandra and Martin Symonds Foundation to its educational programs.
